

CLASSIC ITALIAN APERITIVO $22

In Italy, it's very common to have an "aperitivo" before dinner in the evening.

This is a time where friends or family get together for a catch-up with a glass of something refreshing and a few nibbles to stimulate their appetite before the main meal.

ITALIAN DIGESTIVE LIQUEURS

A popular Italian tradition, they are typically served after dessert and coffee courses at the end of a meal aiding digestion, settling the stomach and prolonging the sociable ambience of dining.

“Digestivi” and “Amari” are made by infusing alcohol with fruits or a blend of herbs, flowers, aromatic roots and bark, citrus peels and spices. Most are herbal on the nose and almost medicinal on the palate.
